BOYCOTTING THE OPERATORS

HOW KNIGHTS OF LABOR WILL AID THE LEHIGH MINERS.

rekeepers and Business Men in the Valley Will Be Asked to Join the Movemen Expected to Withdraw Their Traffic from the Lehigh Valley Railroad - Arrangements for a Benefit Entertainment

ISPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD, I

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.-Friends of the striking miners of the Lehigh coal fields yesterday decided to employ the boycott as weapon against the leading corporations and firms in the Lehigh region whom they regard as the most dangerous adversaries in the present struggle.

While the output of coal shipped by the Lehigh operators has heretofore been made the object of the boycott, the measure will from now on be directed against the operators themselves and their business interests Vesterday afternoon a secret meeting of leaders in railroad employees' organizations was held down-town and at this meeting the foregoing plan of action was adopted. There were thirty-five persons present, representatives of Pennsylvania Railroad Employees' District Assembly 212; Reading Railroad Employees' Convention and employees of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, with a number of representative miners. The situation of the strike was discussed in detail and numerous schemes were advanced that were calculated to aid the striking miners. The determina-tion to boycott the Lehigh operators, how-ever, was the feature of the meeting and the discussion that led to it occupied the greater discussion that led to it occupied the greater part of their time.

Rather than allow their organization to be crushed, therefore, it was determined yesterday by the leaders in the conference to institute a boycott on the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, the Lehigh Valley Railroad, A. Pardee & Sons and Eckley B.

In this step the Knights believe they will In this step the Knights believe they will be aided by the leading business men of the entire Lehigh region, and it is proposed that immediate steps be taken to enforce the boycott in Mahanoy City, Shenandoah, Pottsville, Centralia, Ashland and in other towns along the line of the Lehigh Valley road. The business men and small merchants are already organized in these and other towns for the purpose of contributing moral and financial aid to the support of the miners, and these business men will be asked to refuse to patronize the highways or products of the interdicted roads and corporations. And if merchants, for instance, should patronize the Lehigh Valley road in the transportation of their for instance, should patronize the Lehigh Valley road in the transportation of their goods the Knights in the various towns will refuse to deal with them. As a consequence the merchants and business men will be expected to withdraw their traffic from the Lehigh Valley road. The boycott will be instituted, it is said, within the coming week.

Extensive arrangements have been made for the benefit entextainment which will be given in the Acadeu-Jof Music on Nov. 26 in aid of the Lehigh miners. Special trains will bring delegations of Knights from all over the Reading Railroad, and at the close of the performance, which will be "Legardere; or, the Hunchback of Paris," a procession will be formed of the visiting Knights, who will be escorted to the railroad station by several bands of music.

[From the Sun Prancisco Post.]

The announcement that Sam Brannan has returned to this city from Guaymas, Sonora, and is registered at a lodging-house on Commercial street, revives a host of recollections concerning the erratic career of that erratic gentleman. Sam Brannan's career on this coast has been a varied one. He was the first man to start a newspaper in California, and was instrumental in the finding and working of gold in the island which is now known is Mormon Island. Sam Brannan was the Devil in that great play of "Gold Discovery," which was acted here throughout the years 1849-150. Though the actors were by no means angels, yet Sam Brannan, by superior intelligence and his unbounded audacity, and for a great many months play a leading part during that time. As an exof his audacity, Sam Brannan constituted himself the collector of tithes for the benefit of the Mormon Church, and this tithe was one-tenth of the gross product of the gold mines. Strange to say, the Mormon miners unhesitatingly paid to say, the Mormon miners unhesitatingly paid to Sam this tithe, in the silly belief that it was duly forwarded to Sait Lake City. For many months the tithe was paid without a murmur, but one day Gen. Sherman, who was then stationed here, happened to pay a visit to Mormon Island, and was approached with a complaint by certain Mormons.

"Lieutenant," said they," "we are paying one-tenth of the gross product of our earnings to Sam Brannan as a tithe to the Mormon Churon and we do not believe that he is sending it as ne promised. We wish that you would see him about it."

Sherman was a notorious lover of justice and was ever reany to listen to a complaint, and, if possible, rectify it, so when de returned to San Francisco he met Sam and told him what he had heard.

heard,
"More fools they to pay," said Sam, "and as long as they pay so long will I take."
Sherman communicated this answer to the sweitering Latter Day Saints at Mormon Island, and after a great many resolutions it was finally agreed that the tithe should be discontinued.
Little was heard of Sam Brannan for many years, until he suddenly loomed up with the start-agreed that the tithe should be discontinued.

Little was heard of Sam Brannan for many years, until he suddenly loomed up with the startling news that he had furnished supplies to the Mexican Government during the war of 1886 to the tune of $10,000,000. The Mexican Government, rather justly, repudiated this claim and gave him a few thousand dollars. Then Sam Brannan loomed up again as a great colonist, and elacorated a big scheme for furnishing Sonora with colonists, and for the furtherance of this plan he took up his residence in the town of Guaymas, which is the port of the State of Sonora.

Now Sam Brannan's life in Guaymas has not been that of a Bayard, but, on the contrary, it has had in it all these elements which bring blushes to the checks of all right-minded Americans. The American is not loved in Mexico. In truth, he is very generally hated. A gringo, which really only applies to an Englishman, is very generally liked, but an American is detested. The American in Mexico is regarded very much as was an Englishman in days gone by on the European continent. Sam Brannan was not valu and boastful. He was inclined to be over-friendly and inclined to him, and was made for his especial convenience. Then he was a much-married man. The tale goes that one day he presented himself before consul Willard and demanded that he marry him at once to a young girl whom he had met in that city.

'' I cannot possibly do it, Mr. Brannan, unless I have proof that you are divorced from your wife."

'What in the devil is that to you?" haughtily replied Brannan.

'Well, I cannot marry you, that is all, "replied replied Brannan.
.. Well, I cannot marry you, that is all," replied

"You can't you old greaser? Call yourself American Consul? — you! I'll report you. I'll report you. I'll ave you removed." And Mr. Brannan withdrew to the street and contented himself with throwing tooks into the building and cursing every American that was a consul and that did not entertain the same views on marriage as he did.

id. Sam Branuan, while the railroad was building.

Sam Branuan, while the railroad was building, opened a saloon in a railroad town and placed in charge an American of the name of Richardson. The quarrels that Richardson and Brannan had were the amusement of the town.

As a dresser Sam Brannan was not a success during his stay in that town. In the hot weather, and it can be hot in Guaymas, Sam Brannan was the reverse of being well clad. His favorite apparel was an old chintz dressing-gown which came a little below his knees, a pair of carpet slippers down at heel and out of toe, and a gaudy Japanese umbrells. Arrayed in only these articles of wearing apparel, Mr. Sam Brannan would stroil out to pay his calls and attend to his business. It can be imagined what alarm his appearance caused among the fair senorities of Sonors when he came before them in his flapping dressing-gown. One day, when a freel sca-breeze was blowing through the little town and fanning in few sickly orange trees in the plaza, Mr. Sam Brannan appeared in all the glory of his gaudy dress. A meeting was held by the prominent residents of the place, and a deputation watted upon Brannan appeared in all the glory of his gaudy dress. A meeting was held by the prominent residents of the place, and a deputation waited upon Sam requesting him to finish his toilet before he appeared on the plaza. Sam's reply was couched in the form of breaking the paper umbrells over the speaker's head, and he retired to the house in high dudgeon, his month vomiting forth curses upon every man, woman and child in the State of Sonora of the great Mexican Republic.

THE TEXAS RANGERS.

The Only Protection the State has Against the Bandits of the Border.

[From the Galveston News.] The Governor has been advised from the Ric Grande that rangers cannot suppress brigandage on that border. What rangers have accomplished they can again accomplish. They have given that porcer a degree of protection for years. Granting the brigands to be under the command of some great chieftain, granting the miscreants' undaunted courage, granting the people of the country to bd thoroughly subdued by fear, and granting the rangers to be in leadership and numbers inferior to the hostile raiders, of course the Governor would despair of success. But there is no evidence that there is a bandit organization of any extent, or that the trouble down there is anything more than the incursions of independent bands of freebooters. Their operations are not characterized by bravery and their numbers are not known to be formidable. They would be presumed, from their acts, to be cowardly and cruei bravos, easily subdued by Texas rangers. Some of Cortinas's bands fought courageously, but a few Texas rangers soon killed off the more dauntless and terrorized those who escaped into Mexico. Texas rangers can, and if properly handled will, again shortly give protection upon the Itio Graude. The Governor has no other means under his sole control. He is not even able to aid and encourage the local civil authorities as in other sections by the offer of rewards, because the local authorities are said to be more rangers to be in leadership and numbers inferioe to aid and encourage the local civil authoritics as in other sections by the offer of rewards, because the local authorities are said to be more thoroughly terrorized by the bandis than the people. Texas must look to the rangers. If in numbers and efficiency to the rangers. If in numbers and efficiency to the long peace and inaction has been redered less formidable than formerly, the Governor can perhaps increase it and raise its efficiency to the old-time standard. Unless this can be accomplished the Rio Grande Valley had as well be surrendered to the brigands. Texas can offset the zona libre on the Mexican side by a like free zone on this side of the Rio Grande. Bands of bandits on one side and bands of smugglers on the other would make the great valley such an outlaw paradise that even the train robbers might be induced to immigrate to that neutral ground. Texas is tired of that border and would doubtiess be perfectly willing to yield it to the rule of robbers in case the rangers are unable to give the honest occupants protection, but that would only create a nearer border. It is not admissible that the State cannot protect citizens of the state anywhere in its boundaries. It is only by rangers that the people down on this border can be protected, and so it is strenuously held that the State must exhaust its resources if necessary to maintain a sufficient force to stamp out the bandits now raiding that section.

CLARA BELLE M'DONALD'S CASE.

Swaln, Her Paramour, Has Gone to Council Bluffs-Is He the Forger ? [SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

San Francisco, Nov. 14 .- The McDonald case has taken an unexpected turn. It will be recalled that Clara Belle McDon ald attempted to shoot her father-in-law, Dr. R. H. McDonald, in Baldwin's Hotel, Oct. 21. She is the defendant in a divorce suit in which her husband accuses her of too great intimacy with Seneca Augustus Swain, s sporting man with whom she became infatuated. On Friday she was arrested on five charges of forgery on complaint of Senator Stanford, through an agent, who accuses her Stanford, through an agent, who accuses her of selling to Mr. Stanford for $10,000 some Central Pacific stock to which the indorsement was forged. In default of $15,000 bail she and her little girl were locked up.

The little girl was taken seriously ill yesterday in prison. The poor child lay moaning and imploring her mother to take her from the dark, damp cellar, known as the city prison. Finally the Chief of Police consented that mother and child should take a drive and afterward on the certificate of a physician allowed Clara Belle to go home and stay under surveillance. The baby got worse as the carriage neared the home and the mother also became quite ill. The Doctor says she was taken with successive hemhorrages which have increased in violence, and her condition is now critical.

Last evening Swain, her paramour, who is supposed to have been the real forger of her certificates left suddenly for Council Bluffs carrying several trunks.

The police have the theory that Clara Belle would have joined him in his flight if it had been possible. Undoubtedly she will obtain bail to-day.

JOHN SHEEHAN'S SKULL BROKEN.

Election Night Fight.

John Hepenstal, a bartender in McCoy's aloon at Seventy-sixth street and Third avenue, was taken under arrest to the Caroner's office to-day, charged with having fatally clubbed John Sheehan, a young coachman of 1729 First avenue.

The trouble occurred election night, when there was a large crowd in McCoy's saloon. Sheehan was there with his friend, Thomas Mullane, of 1,591 Firstavenue. A well-known Republican politician was treating the boys and Mullane says that he and Sheehan were and Mullane says that he and Sheehan were invited to name their drinks.

They kept on ordering after their host left, and Repenstal put in a claim for forty-five cents, Neither Sheehan nor Mullane would pay, and high words ensued.

Hepenstal, it is alleged, came from behind the bar with a club and fiercely attacked the men. Both went home with broken heads, but neither thought he was dangerously hurt.

Sheehan acted in a dazed way all Wednesday and Thursday, and on Friday night began to bleed at the ears. Then his wife sent for a physician. Dr. H. L. Gibson treated the patient for two days and last evening informed Coron-Coroner Eidman that Sheehan had received a fracture of the base of the skull and was likely to die. The Coroner tried to take a fracture of the base of the skull and was likely to die. The Coroner tried to take Sheehan's ante-mortem statement early this morning, but the man was unconscious.

Hepenstal was committed to the Tombs. He says that Sheehan and Mullane were drunk and abusive and threw a glass at nim when he asked for payment for the drink, He admits having a stick in his hand, but says that Sheehan got his injuries by falling against the edge of the bar. against the edge of the bar.

ATTEMPTED SELF-CREMATION.

Mildred Tyler, After a Kerosene Shower Bath, Sets Herself on Fire.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] Boston, Nov. 14.-Mildred Tyler, colored thirty years old, attempted suicide at Cam bridge yesterday. The method by which she sought to relieve herself of her earthly cares was a novel one. She lived at the rear of 33 Hastings street, where for several days she has brooded over the absence of her husband.

Yesterday she retired to an upper room and, having undressed, she poured a large quantity of kerosene over the upper portion of her light dress. This she immediately set on fire with a match and then prepared to die. The pain endured by the burning gar-ment in close proximity to her flesh caused her to scream lustily for help.

The neighbors rushed in only to find her in an almost frenzied condition and horribly burned.

She was removed to the Cambridge Hospishe was removed to the calleringe Hospital, where it was found that her injuries will prove fatal. The neighbors believe her to be insane over the absence of her husband, the latter having informed her at the time of leaving that he never intended to return.

DR. M'GLYNN'S TRIP ABROAD.

Proposing to Do Land Tax Missionary Work in England and Scotland. After the close of his address in Steinway

Hall last night, Dr. McGlynn was met by reporter for THE EVENING WORLD, who asked him if it were true that he was going abroad. "I have received from friends of Mr. eorge in England and Scotland," Dr. Mc-Glynn replied, "pressing invitations to go to those countries and address the people on the land tax doctrine, and I contemplate making the journey in January or February, but there is nothing definitely settled about it yet."

"Will you visit Ireland?"

"I do not consider it wise to do so in the present state of affairs. I do believe that the land tax remedy is best for that country, but its advocacy would be met at the present time with a strong opposition on the part of the leaders of the proprietary system, and I think I could accomplish more among the people in England and Scotland. Mr. George made but two addresses in Ireland during his sojourn, and then, I understand, he was threatened with suppression by some of Mr. Davitt's friends."

"Then you do not think the proprietary system is good one for Ireland?"

"It is not. I think that it would be even worse than the present landlordism. It has been tried in Belgium, and the people are worse of to-day than ever. I think I can accomplish more among the working classes in England and Will you visit Ireland?" M. Andrioux, formerly Prefect of Police.

Dr. McGlynn's remarks concerning the falling off in the Labor vote caused a sensation among the Labor leaders who were present, including Chairman John McMackin, and after the meeting several of them begged him to desist from attack for a while. He met the request in his characteristically earnest manner, and was then hurried over to a conference of the anti-Poverty leaders in the Academy of Music. It is said that the Etnation was discussed and an early meeting proposed for the purpose of laying out work for the future and organizing a national party, which Dr. McGlynn suggested should be christened the "Common Weal Party."

STRAIGHTENING OUT ITS AFFAIRS.

The Ivanhoe Paper Company, of Paterson Likely to Be Reorganized, probably be filed to-day. Mr. Hobart has to qualify in the sum of $50,000.

The receiver was appointed on Saturday on the petition of Henry V. Butler, jr., of Paterson, a stockholder and former president and manager of the company. It is the initial step towards straightening the accounts of the company, which, since the disappearance of President David Scott, of the firm of Vernon Brothers & Co., were said to be embarrassed.

At the office of the American National Exchange Bank, which is said to be the principal creditor of ths company, holding about $70,000 of its paper, the appointment was favored for the same reason. It is believed there that the company at Paterson will continue work, and that the mills will not be shut down even for a day. When the stock now in the mill is exhausted which Supt. Decker thinks will be before long, it is probable that, under the reorganized company which will manage affairs, work will be eontinued, aithough upon a new basis.

NO STAY FOR COL. GEBHARD.

THE NEW YORK CLUB NOT ENJOINED FROM EXPELLING HIM.

Judge Barrett Decides That the Question is Primarily One of Honor Between Gentlemen-The Club Tribunal the Proper One-Of the Opinion That Counsel Should Be Allowed to Appear for the Defense.

Col. Edward Gebbard's suit to enjoin the New York Club from expelling him. The permanent injunction is denied and the temporary stay dissolved with costs,

In his decision, Judge Barrett says: In his decision, Judge Barrett says:

The injunction is asked upon an inaccurate conception of the real dispute between the plaintiff and the club. It is not a question of the character or propriety of the plaintiff's bil, but one of honor between gentlemen. The charge, in substance, is that the plaintiff having obtained a favorable audit of his accounts upon a distinct promise that he would subsequently recast it so as to meet the approval of the Boart, has violated his pleage, refused either to recast the bill or to restore the original status, and has retained the money, even after the Boart's gecission of the saudit.

original status, and has retained the money, even after the Board's recission of the audit.

It is also charged that this repudiation of an honorable understanding was aggravated by evasion with regard to the piedge itself and by the recall, in an unseemly manner, of a letter upon the abject addressed by the plaintiff to the president of the club. It surely needs no extended discussion to point out that the laste raised by the plaintiff's earnest denial of these charges is an appropriate one to be heard by the club itself under its constitution and by-laws.

club. It surely needs no extended discussion to point out that the issue raised by the plainiff's earnest denial of these charges is an appropriate one to be heard by the club itself under its constitution and by-laws.

These are questions of honor between gentlemen, with which the courls have primarily nothing to do. Now, surely the board may lawfully say that it considers the conduct of the plainiff, should be charges be proved, as dangerous to the welfare of the club. It certainly would be dangerous to the character of any association of gentlemen to have among them a member who has secured money, however honestly earned by dishonorable means, and who retains it even legally, by discrediting a fellow member's word and repudiating his own.

A Court of Equity will undoubtedly see to it that the equity has a fair hearing and that the accused member has a fair hearing and that the club proceeds in accordance with the principles of natural justice. What the plaintiff asks is that there shall be no hearing at all, and that he shall retain his membership untried, by mere force of our injunction.

It will not do to say that because the original dispute was with the club itself, the Board of Directors is incompetent to try a question of honor and veracity growing out of that dispute. Nor can the plaintiff disquality his constitutional judges by gratulously or without specific proof assailing their importality. It is this club tribumal and this alone that he contracted for upon questions of club discipline when he signed the constitution. But the piaintiff scharges are fully met by the opposing papers. Further, the judgment of the Board of Directors is not final.

The question of a fair hearing can only be solved whon all the proceedings thereon are before us. Upon the hearing the plaintiff can object to any particular member of the Board of Directors is not final.

The question of a fair hearing can only be solved when all the proceedings thereon are before us. Upon the hearing the plaintiff can object to any particu narters still cherished must now be abandoned, and the public will no longer be able to entertain the smallest doubt as to the grave nature of the malady from which the heir to the Imperial Throne of Germany is suffering.

Saturday's Imperial and Royal Gazette pubishes the following:

" According to news from San Remo there is, unhappily, no longer any doubt that the malady of His Imperial and Royal Highness the Crown Prince has in reality the nature of carcinoma. Trustworthy information as to further treatment will only be possible after Dr. Moritz Schmidt, who was sent to San Remo by command of the Kaiser, shall have made his verbal report here." LATER-The report made to-day by Prof. Schmidt to the Kaiser leaves no doubt as to the cancerous nature of the Crown Prince's malady. For the present, however, there is no thought of an operation or of the patient's removal from San Remo to Berlin.

The report made a sad impression upon the Kaiser, whose spirits are necessarily low, but physically his physicians are thoroughly satisfied with his state of health.

LONDON'S DEFEATED MOB.

Angry at the Police and Arranging for Another Sunday Meeting.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE EVENING WORLD.] LONDON, Nov. 14.-Thousands of people in this great city did not know that there was almost a riot last evening until they read it in the newspaper this morning. New Yorkers who followed the description I sent to THE WORLD last night know as much about the trouble as does the newspaper reader in London. To-day the promptness of the police is commended by people and press. Undoubtedly it was intended as a test case and the guardians of the public peace proved themselves equal to the emergency. A little foresight is worth a "heap" of hind sight, and Sir Charles Warren has shown his clearheadedness in having the militia ready for an mergency. The police are making the rounds of the nospitals to-day trying to ascertain the number of people injured and their names. It will not exceed the estimates sent last night. So far as can be learned, about thirty people applied at public pharmacies and hospitals to have wounds in the head dressed, which were evidently the result of a policeman's club. A dozen policeman were more or less injured in the scrimmage.

The police are not yet all gone from Trafalgar Square, though the majority of them were dismissed before midnight and the military returned to their barracks soon after nightfall. Three hours after the row the streets of London were as quiet as they ever are. The Radicals are very angry and much excited over the repulse and are arranging for another attempt at a meeting
